FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

January 12, 2011

David Kamp is Keynote Speaker at Sustainability Symposium 2011: Healing Spaces

New York, NY – January 12, 2011 – David Kamp, FASLA, LF and Principal of Dirtworks, PC will be the Keynote Speaker at the Sustainability Symposium 2011: Healing Spaces at the Cleveland Botanical Garden on February 4, 2011. Now on its, 6th year, the symposium’s compelling premise is that a passion for good gardening goes hand-in-hand with sound ecological choices.

The Sustainability Symposium is a two-day, learning and networking experience focused on healing spaces. David Kamp will speak on “Collaboration in the Garden: Creating Restorative Environments.” David Kamp was instrumental in the creation of the award-winning and internationally recognized Elizabeth and Nona Evans Restorative Garden. The Restorative Garden educates and entertains visitors with sensory-rich experiences and programs and provides a setting for the collection and display of plants. Most importantly, the Restorative Garden does these things discreetly and comfortably, for people of all abilities.
